

Wainwright and Kinsella Scene of Autumn Weddings

LOMAS — MURRAY

On Saturday, October 3, 1959, at 2 p.m., the Kinsella United Church was the scene of a lovely autumn wedding when Margaret Martha Edna, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murray of Kinsella, pledged vows to Mr. Arthur Francis Lomas, eldest son of Mrs. J. Lomas and the late Mr. Lomas of Bittern Lake, Alberta.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Clinton Swallow. Mrs. E. Simmons played the wedding music and soloist Mrs. Jack McKie sang "Because" and "Till Walk Beside You."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a floor length gown of white silk organza and the bodice featured a round lace neckline with short cross-over sleeves. The full skirt and lace side panels were fashioned over a hoop. Her sequin-clustered chapel veil was secured by a coronet of tulle, pearls and sequins. The cascade bouquet consisted of white and pink tipped red gardenias complimented by lily of the valley. Her only jewelry was a double strand of pearls and matching earrings, a gift of the groom.

Sister of the groom, Miss Margaret Lomas of Bittern Lake, was maid of honor, while a long-time friend of the bride, Miss Mabel Lockhart of Vermilion, was bridesmaid. The attendants chose waist-length gowns of blue embroidered satin over net and taffeta and yellow net over taffeta respectively. Matching accessories were worn and nose-gays of yellow and blue gardenias were carried.

Groomsmen were brother of the groom, Mr. Kenneth Lomas of Edmonton and long-time friends of the groom, Mr. Norman an Wickman of Bittern Lake. Ushers were brother of the bride, Mr. John Murray of Kinsella, and brother-in-law of the groom, Mr. Ross Seblene of Wetaskiwin.

A reception followed in the Kinsella Memorial Hall. The bride table was laid in white Irish linen and decorated with fresh garden flowers. A 3-tiered wedding cake topped by an imitation bride and groom, centered the table.

The blessing was asked by the Rev. Clinton Swallow. Mr. Jack McKie, master of ceremonies, proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom ably responded.

To receive her guests, the mother of the bride chose a green dress and pale green accessories and corsage of red carnations. The mother of the groom donned a blue frock with pink accessories and also wore a corsage of red carnations.

The guest book was in charge of Mrs. Charles Tessman of Kinsella.

Telegrams received were from Mr. and Mrs. A. Shanks and Mrs. A. Bain, Fife, Scotland, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Chapman, Vancouver, B.C.

The bride's going-away outfit was a grey box suit with robin blue accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The newly weds were then hosts at a wedding dinner in Bittern Lake that evening.

They will make their home in Camrose after a short trip to Calgary and Banff.

Out-of-town guests present were from Edmonton, Wetaskiwin, Camrose, Roseland, New Norway, Bittern Lake and New York, U.S.A.

MCKIE — GARVIE

Grace United Church, Wainwright, was the scene of a quiet wedding Saturday, September 19. The double ring ceremony united in marriage, Carol Elizabeth, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Garvie and William Malcolm, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McKie, all of Kinsella. Rev. J. Strapp performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a blue dress with a white feather hat and white gloves. She carried a white Bible topped with a pink rose and trailing white satin streamers with roses.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Cleora Garvie. She wore a tangerine dressmaker suit with white feather hat and white gloves. She wore a corsage of white roses.

Best man was Mr. Joe Makar, a friend of the bridegroom.

Before leaving the church, a Scottish custom was observed when the bride's cousin Dianne Garvie presented her with a silver horse shoe decorated with white streamers and white feathers from Scotland.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Garvie chose a mauve printed dress with pink and white accessories and a white corsage. Mrs. McKie, mother of the groom, chose a two-piece rose dress with white accessories and a white rose corsage.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Garvie held a reception at the home of the groom's parents for about thirty relatives. The bride's table was decorated with a three-tiered wedding cake flanked with tall white candles. Mr. Makar proposed the toast to the young couple to which the groom responded.

A telegram of good wishes from the groom's uncle and aunt in California was read. The newlyweds left by car for a trip to Saskatchewan and Montana.

Mr. and Mrs. McKie will make their home in Edson.

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Livestock Assistance Policies.

The Alberta Department of Agriculture is still operating policies under which they give financial assistance to farmers who raise commercial livestock. This applies to Boars, Rams and Bulls. In order to make use of this assistance, anyone interested must complete an application form which can be obtained at this office. In the case of boars and rams, the department assists on the cost of the animal and pays the shipping charges to the applicants nearest rail point. On bulls the assistance is 20% of the purchase price to a maximum of $75.00. In all cases the animal must be inspected before it is bought.

Protect Trees and Shrubs.

A lot of our trees and shrubs which "winter kill" are really not damaged by the cold. In many cases they have actually died out. Some of this can be prevented by making sure that these plants are well watered after growth has stopped in the fall. Another aid is to try to get snow collected around the plants so as to protect them.

Rat Control & Coyote Control.

Just because rats are being kept in check is no reason to become careless. At this time of year rats move into buildings and feed stacks for the winter. Everyone should be on the look-out and should report any sign or suspicion of rats to their Pest Control officer. Poison is supplied free and the P.C.O. will check the premises and tell you how and where to put the poison. Coyotes seem to be plentiful through the district and are taking some poultry. Straychinese pel-liver from the P.C.O. or Field Supervisor to control these pests. Fall and winter are the easiest and best times to get rid of coyotes.

Cub Corner

Well here we are again fairly well organized for another year. There has been a slight rearrangement of leadership. Mr. Albert Bacon is now the new Cub leader and has a couple of quite capable assistants. Mr. Gage Fendler very kindly volunteered to be Scout Master. It is our hope that all those "over-age" Cubs will rally around and form a real good Scout troop. The meetings are scheduled for Thursday at 6:45 in the School Lunch Room. This makes it possible to have Cubs and Scouts the same evening, thus saving the parents an extra trip.

We would still be very pleased if some capable persons would step forward and offer their services as assistant leaders. We are very short of help along this line. What about some of you fathers who bring your boys in every week?

The next group committee meeting is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Murray on Tuesday, Nov. 3. Any parents are very welcome to attend any or all of these meetings.

Anyone who has sweaters and caps to dispose of could leave their name with Mrs. Murray so that we could arrange for the sale of them to new Cubs coming into the pack.

Northern Nuggets

Yvonne Blanchard is a patient in Mannville hospital where she had an emergency operation for appendicitis. We are glad to say that she is making a good recovery.

Mr. C. L. Currie, who spent 3 weeks in the University hospital, is now convalescing at the home of his daughter in the city.

Don't forget the Buffalo Coulee WI Bazaar in the Legion Hall, Irma, on Nov. 7th.

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

A successful "Meet the Teacher" night was held in the school on October 19 with over 75 present. After Mr. Gunn introduced each teacher to the parents, Mr. Hall gave an interesting talk on human relationships existing between fellow workers, parents and children, and between teachers and students.

Future meetings will give you an idea of material taught and how it's presented to the different grades in our classrooms.

The prize for best parent attendance this month went to Mr. Prosser's room.

We hope to see you again on the third Monday of next month.

Change In CNR Train Schedules

CFRN Most Powerful Radio Station in Alta.

As a climax to their 25th Anniversary celebrations, Radio Station CFRN pulled the big switch this week to increase power to 10,000 watts, to become the first station in Northern Alberta with a continuous 24-hour a day service at that power.

Edmonton's two other fully commercial Radio Stations operate on 10,000 watts also, but during the daylight hours only.

To make the increase possible, CFRN had to move their transmitter to a new site approximately six miles south of the location on the Jasper Highway, about one mile west of the city limits. The new high-efficiency antenna is 472 feet high.

With the power increase, CFRN now transmits a stronger and much clearer signal to a considerably larger broadcast area.

Gas Company Asks Further Price Increase

A further increase in gas rates, due to increased costs of purchased gas which represents 93 per cent of the total volume supplied to consumers, was requested today by Northwestern Utilities, Limited.

In its application filed with the Board of Public Utility Commissioners the gas company asked for an upward revision of most gas rates by two-tenths of a cent per therm. For a residential customer using 2,500 therms annually this would mean an increase of about $5 a year.

This is the latest in a series of developments on gas rates over the past 18 months. After lengthy hearings by the board, new rates went into effect September 1. The rates were made on an interim basis because the board recognized that adjustments were necessary from time to

Monday Night Is Farm Forum Night!

Monday night, November 2, is the beginning of another season of Farm Forums. There will be two special reasons why farmers around Viking should tune in. First, because of the topic "The Small Farm — A Special Case" and second, because this will be a program with forum members from Vegreville reporting and asking questions over the air.

Dr. Andrew Stewart, Chairman of the Royal Commission on Food Price Spreads, said recently: "Evidence has shown that when the farmer said he was selling below the cost of production, he was telling nothing less than the hard and bitter truth. How can he continue doing this? He simply tightens his belt, forgets about depreciation of his assets and lives on his capital."

What is the answer? Is there a clear cut formula for farmers? Each of the 120,000 farmers in Canada who earn less than $1500 per year has a problem earning a living. Should special policies be designed to assist those who are content on a small farm to remain there, and to help those who wish to relocate, to do so?

This year, perhaps more than ever before in the nineteen years of National Farm Radio Forum, considered judgment is being sought by your government and farm organizations. You must delve into your problems as deeply as you can and try to find answers to them.

Fashion Hints for Looking Smart:

Accessories prove costly if they are good for only one or two wearings. One would choose more wisely if you heed these fashion hints.

—Expensive accessories, such as hats, shoes and handbags usually should be the same color as the basic garment; varied colors can be used in smaller, less expensive accessories.

—Choose accessories that are simple in line and workmanship. —Bright colored wardrobes call for subdued accessories.

—If bright colored shoes and bag are your choice, they usually need to be worn with navy, black, neutrals or harmonizing pastels.

—The effect is usually spotted if more than two bright-colored matching accessories are worn at one time. One bright colored accessory often is smarter than two with the other accessories harmonizing in color.

—If a brilliant hat is worn with the black dress, wear dark shoes and bag.

—Gloves may match shoes, hat or bag in neutral colors or they may be selected in a harmonized color when either hat, bag or shoes are bright in color.

—Hats, shoes or bags, when worn with multicolored prints, plaids or the other designs, should be of a plain color. Keep them simple in design.

—An all-black ensemble often demands a soft touch of color to relieve the monotone and light up the wearer's complexion.

—Before buying accessories, try them together with the costume they are to complement. A slight change in shape, color and size may make or destroy that "smooth look of elegance."

—The smartly dressed person selects accessories in scale with her size. A large heavy looking purse or hat does not compliment the small, dainty person. The tiny hat with dainty trimming is not becoming to a large person.

Choose accessories to suit you and your personality. They should emphasize good features or minimize poor ones. Hands that are large will go unnoticed if plain, neutral or dark-colored gloves are worn to match your outfit in color. Colored gloves or gloves with decoration call attention to the same large hands, but they may be just right for the woman with small hands and wearing a dark suit that needs an accent of color.

"Fashion is something we buy, but style is what we give the things we wear."

CO-UP WEEK CANADA

OCTOBER
25 - 31The Story of
Co-op TrustBy H. A. WAGNER,
General Manager

The Co-operative Trust Company Limited was organized by co-operatives and credit unions of the province in 1952 under special legislation.

The assets of the company have increased until by the end of this year it is expected they will approach two million dollars.

The functions may be outlined as follows:

1. To act as executor and trustee of wills.
2. To make long-term mortgage

loans to members of credit unions and co-operatives.

3. To provide a safe investment medium for co-operative associations, credit unions and individual co-operators.

4. To act in a trustee capacity for debenture and bond issues.

5. To receive and administer sinking funds.

6. To manage and administer business enterprises (Service Agencies Limited—a subsidiary company selling all forms of fire, hail and auto insurance).

The company's mortgage loans to individuals are recommended by credit unions which must make a minimum investment in the Trust Company of 10 percent of the approved loan. This has been the central feature of the company's loaning policy as it enables it to reach the borrower in a more direct route than other trust companies, which must pay commissions on loans and which usually have heavy appraisal and acquisition costs which are charged to the borrower.

As at the end of 1958, the company had 145 members of which 116 were credit unions, 21 local co-operatives and eight provincial co-operatives.

The Government of Saskatchewan

Co-operative
Life Insurance Company

By BREEN MELVIN, Secretary

Co-operative Life Insurance Company was incorporated as a Saskatchewan company in March, 1945. It obtained a Dominion charter in 1947 and now operates in nine of the 10 provinces.

Control of the company is in the hands of the policyowners, each of whom has one vote in the annual meeting. Insurance advisory committees in each of the operational areas provide a link with the membership between meetings.

Types of insurance written are personal, group life and group pension plans. Insurance in force at September 30, 1959, totalled $140,368,000. Invested assets were valued at $7,435,000.

Branch offices are located in Vancouver, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa and Halifax.

Among the Co-op Life's objectives are the following:

1. To provide insurance services in a high ethical manner and by the most efficient and economical method possible—service at cost.
2. To be generally responsive to the welfare of society in fostering the building of better democratic organizations and the maintenance of a sound and stable national economy which contributes to the making of a healthy and progressive society.

Wan has appointed the Co-operative Trust Company Limited to administer the Family Farm Credit Act. Under this legislation long-term loans will be advanced to young farmers in order to take over the family farm or to add to it to make it an economic farm unit.

A staff of seven are presently employed. The most recent acquisition to the staff is an experienced solicitor. It is believed this is the first full-time solicitor employed by the Co-operative Movement.

Advancing loans has been the chief activity of the Trust Company up to this time. It is expected that in future, the loaning activities will assume a less dominant position and the estate section of its operations will assume greater importance.

MAJOR FACTOR

The co-operative movement has from pioneer days been a major factor in improving economic and social conditions amongst the people of Saskatchewan. The co-operative technique is as old as mankind, yet as new as the morning paper. Times change, but the need for people to work together, or co-operate, remains.

Federated Co-operatives and Consumer Co-operative
Development in Sask. and Man.

By H. L. FOWLER, President, Federated Co-ops Ltd.

On a cold and blustery day in November, in the year 1901, a few farmers met on Dewdney Avenue, in Indian Head. This meeting led to others. Out of these meetings grew the Territorial Grain Growers of Western Canada, which played to important a part in the early organization and promotion of the co-operative movement and all its branches on the prairies.

The first action through co-operatives on the part of farmers in that day was on the marketing of primary products, and among the first co-operatives was the Grain Growers Grain Company. This was followed by other co-operatives in the field of cereal crops, livestock, dairy products, etc.

About a decade later farmers began to realize that, while it was important to secure a greater price for the primary products, it was also important to save money on the commodities which they bought.

The well-known cost-price-squeeze was operating against agriculture in 1901 as it does in 1959. As a result of the recommendation of a Royal Commission, the Co-operative Act was placed on the Statute Books of Saskatchewan in 1933. This was the means of bringing into operation many consumer and farm supply co-operatives. The story in Saskatchewan was paralleled by similar action in Manitoba. In both provinces in the years 1927 and 1928, legislation was taken by the existing consumer co-operatives to form co-operative wholesalers.

The early 30's saw the mechanization of farms, making the purchase of petroleum an important item in farm costs. Petroleum co-operatives were formed, but these found their progress hampered by an unsatisfactory source of supplies. As a result of this condition, capital was raised and on May 27, 1935, the World's first Co-operative Refinery came on stream. In Saskatchewan, the opening of the refinery to be fittingly celebrated in 1960.

The year 1944 saw the merger of the Consumers' Co-operative Refineries Limited and the Saskatchewan Co-operative Wholesale Society Limited into a new organization called Saskatchewan Federated Co-operatives Limited. In 1955 a further merger was consummated by the amalgamation of the Manitoba Co-operative Wholesale Limited and Saskatchewan Federated Co-operatives Limited, the wholesaling and manufacturing organization which serves retail co-operatives from North-western Ontario to the Alberta border.

Federated Co-operatives serves approximately 450 local consumer co-operatives in this area, and these co-operatives, in the fiscal year 1958, had a volume of $90,000,000.

Federated Co-operatives for the fiscal year ending October 31, 1959, will have a wholesale and manufacturing volume in excess of $60,000,000, and savings of approximately $4,000,000 to be allocated on a patronage basis to its various member co-operatives.

Federated's refinery has now grown until it is a modern 15,500 barrel thermal and catalytic cracking plant, with coking equipment and all modern refining facilities. It has embarked on a program of exploration, and has in the neighbourhood of 70 oil wells in the province of Saskatchewan. These produce approximately 20 percent of its own crude requirements.

Federated has two lumber mills at Canoe and Chase, British Columbia, producing lumber for its prairie members to build their farm homes. It has a coal mine in Drumheller, Alberta, to furnish its members who still burn coal with that commodity. Federated has three other branches in Saskatoon, Regina, and Winnipeg.

Federated's plans for the future include a new modern feed mill in Saskatoon costing approximately $1,000,000; a new warehouse at Winnipeg to serve the members in the Manitoba area, costing $1,250,000. Refinery expansion programs to the extent of $2,000,000 are being planned for the current year. Co-ops are on the march in many areas embarking on extensive expansion programs in the local communities. These involve, among other things, the opening of new and modern stores, new lumber yards, new bulk stations and new filling stations. Projects in the current year exceed $1,000,000 in value.

COMMUNITY BUILDERS
Co-ops are sometimes referred to as "community builders". This is because co-operative business keeps dollars spent at home, to build for and benefit local people. Co-ops are locally owned. They guarantee continuing prosperity.

ORGANIZED FOR SERVICE
NOT FOR PROFIT

Co-operation has been significant in Saskatchewan since 1905. Since that time, the co-operative movement has extended its services to approximately 500,000 members in 12,000 associations throughout the province.

The Saskatchewan Power Corporation also has an outstanding record of service. Since 1929, over 53,000 farms have been served with electricity and 70 communities are now enjoying the benefits of natural gas.

News Report From Edmonton

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON — The provincial government evidently hasn't forgotten about the idea of moving into the industrial tax field, a field at present occupied exclusively by the municipalities.

Municipal Affairs Minister Alf Hooke made this clear in the capital city last week in an address to the Junior Chamber of Commerce. He said it may be the answer to some of the inequalities in the present municipal revenue setup, and the government wants to give the idea more study.

Mr. Hooke emphasized that he was expressing his own views and not giving a statement of government policy. But you can be sure he has a strong measure of support from his cabinet colleagues, including Premier Manning, or he wouldn't have spoken on the subject at all.

If the government does go ahead, the scheme would work something like this:

Industries would be taken off municipal assessment rolls and be placed under a provincial assessment. The province would levy a tax, collect the money, and distribute it among all municipalities on a "fair" basis.

The government probably would like to introduce the scheme as soon as possible, maybe even during the 1960 session of the legislature, but there's a terrific amount of groundwork to be done first.

In the first place, arriving at a "fair" formula of distribution is a gigantic task. Mr. Hooke said a municipality's share might be based on the extent to which the municipality provides services to industry. This is a problem that will take a lot of solving, especially in a situation where an industry is located just outside a town, village or city. The industry pays its taxes to the outside municipality, but nearly all the workers live in the urban area and create a demand for services.

Even arriving at a definition of "industry" is a problem. Mr. Hooke said some industries might be left on municipal tax rolls, others might come under the proposed provincial tax. Someone will have to decide where to draw the line.

The provincial industrial tax idea has been discussed by the government off and on for the past four years or so, but it's a real political hot potato and something the province won't rush into without a lot of preliminary study.

Generally speaking, municipalities which have industrial tax revenue are strongly opposed to the idea, while those which have little or no industry are in favor.

Among the advantages of the plan, Mr. Hooke lists the following: It would even out Alberta's present varied municipal tax structure, eliminate unfair competition among municipalities trying to attract industry, and encourage the decentralization of industry in the province.

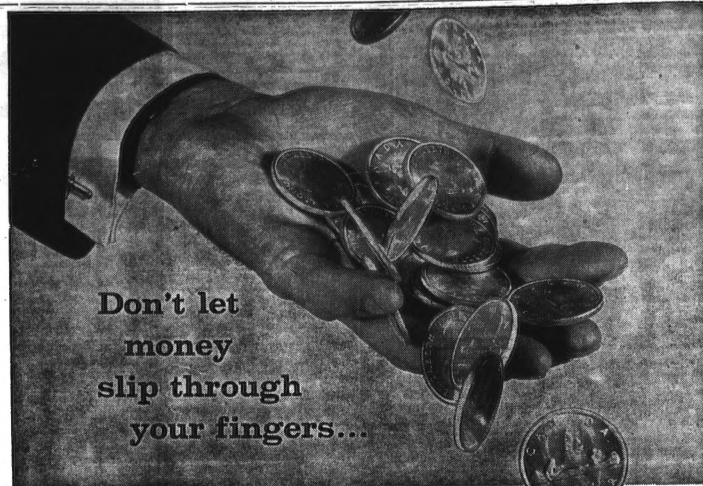

The Minister made the statement in connection with a proposal by Edmonton and two adjoining towns to annex some rich industrial property in the nearby Municipal District of Strathcona. He suggested the industrial tax as a possible alternative to the city's financial ills. But if the province goes ahead with the plan it will have an important bearing on the finances of municipalities all over the province.

Large-scale export of natural gas advanced a step closer to reality last week when the province permits to Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. for construction of 600 miles of pipeline along the Alberta foothills.

The 600 miles of line will eventually form a gathering system to collect gas from foothills fields for export to California and the Pacific Northwestern United States. While the provincial government permits are an important step toward the export program, there isn't much likelihood of action until U.S. and Canadian governments give their approval to the export. If and when they do, it will be a big shot in the arm for the Alberta oil and gas industry.

BETTER THAN EVER!

Winter is coming! But before it sets in, we suggest you make sure your home is ready to provide complete warmth and comfort during the cold weather.

Here are some points to remember.

- Registers should be free of dust or foreign objects. Furniture should be placed so that the registers are not obstructed.
- If doors and windows are loose fitting and drafty, weather stripping will help to eliminate this condition and prevent heat loss.
- The humidifier should be checked to make sure that it is clean and that the float valve operates.
- Every gas appliance with the exception of late model gas ranges must be properly vented. Chimneys and vents should be checked for blockage and state of repair.
- Furnace air filters should be checked and either cleaned or replaced.
- Motor and fan bearings should be oiled according to manufacturer's directions.

Check your furnace yourself or call a qualified service man. And remember, taking these precautions NOW will pay off in comfort and lower heating bills THROUGHOUT THE SEASON.

If you have any questions regarding the operation of your gas heating system or gas appliances in your home, or require any explanation of your monthly gas utility bill, contact your local gas company agent.

Health region doctors meet with staff of Bureau of Alcoholism

"What can we do for the alcoholic in Saskatchewan?"

That was the big question asked of the bureau on alcoholism by regional health doctors and nurses who met with the staff of the bureau during the annual regional health conference held recently in the new health and welfare building. It was one of the first meetings of its kind held in the province—the bureau on alcoholism became a part of the agenda for the meeting and the bureau staff took over the program.

Members of the bureau were invited to participate in the conference by Dr. George Kinneard, director of the regional health services branch. He stated that he felt for some time that valuable work in the field of alcoholism could be achieved by working through the regional health officers and their staffs. Although alcoholism is a health as well as a social problem, this is the first time in the province that plans for staffs of regional health offices to participate in alcoholism treatment and education has come under study.

Nineteen regional health doctors and nurses from the 10 regional health units attended the alcoholism seminar. J. F. A. Calder, director of the bureau, opened the seminar with a review of historical facts on alcohol and alcoholism. He pointed out that alcoholism is not something new but was cause for concern some 4,000 years ago.

He was followed by Pat Ryan, supervisor of information services, who outlined the need for education regarding the problem in the province, and told how it was proposed to meet this need. He stated that his work also included the training of various personnel to deal with the treatment and rehabilitation of alcoholics. Mr. Ryan also showed the "World Health Organization film, 'To Your Health'."

Medical director, Dr. Nick Chwelow, summarized the treatments now used in the province and gave some of the psychological factors that appear to contribute to alcoholism in the drinker. Angus Campbell, lay counsellor for the bureau, related various case histories and informed the group of the methods used in dealing with the alcoholic and his family. A very interesting discussion took place during the seminar and many questions were asked as to how the regional health offices could help cope with the problem in their areas. All doctors and nurses stated that alcoholism was a major problem in the health region, with some of them stating that they were aware of 30 to 40 alcoholics in their respective areas.

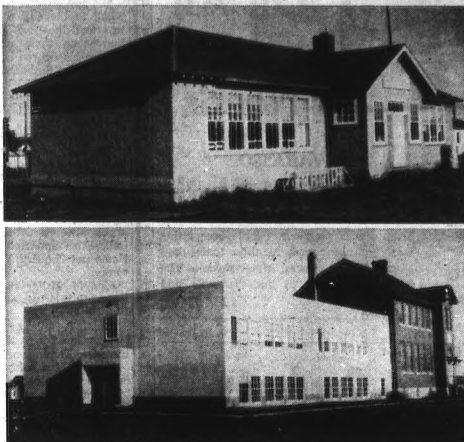

The director of the bureau on alcoholism, in answer to the predominant question: "What can we do for alcoholics in our region?" advised that until such time as an extensive program of rehabilitation and treatment has been set up in the province, the health units should either refer the alcoholic to the nearest AA group or to the bureau.

In an interview following the meeting Dr. Kinneard expressed the view of some of the duties of the health officer is to change and mould public opinion.

"I feel," said Dr. Kinneard, "that public opinion today treats alcoholism as a moral problem; it tends to class the alcoholic as someone not worth treating; it thinks of alcoholism as something that can be cured by punishment and correctional measures. This is not true. The alcoholic can be treated, and usually turns out to be a good member of the community when no longer drinking. The health units can help overcome alcoholism by holding seminars with medical men, with other interested parties, and with the community as a whole to change public opinion so that we accept alcoholism for what it is—a social and health problem." Dr. Kinneard went on: "When we change public opinion we help to create an atmosphere which will be favourable to the prevention of alcoholism. That is one of the functions of the health units, to bring about an atmosphere favourable to prevention of disease so that it is more difficult for people to become ill."

He expressed the hope that mutual co-operation will develop between each of the 10 regional health units and the bureau of alcoholism.

CLASSROOMS IN THESE BUILDINGS—The upper picture shows the present school building in Wakaw, housing nine classrooms. The tall building in the background is the original two-classroom school which, in its heyday was classed at the top and was thought to be sufficiently large to handle the educational requirements. In 1950 the building in the foreground was constructed with four classrooms. This was enough rooms for only a few years and then three more classrooms were completed in the basement. A further increase necessitated using the Legion Hall for two more classrooms. School students in the Legion Hall (bottom picture) were not strangers to the building—it was originally built and used for a school until sold to the Legion in 1950. Starting the 1959 term, pupils are attending classes in both buildings shown above as well as classes in the unit warehouse. All this will change once the new school is completed early in the new year.

DUCK HUNTER LOSES HAND

Altona, Man.—Two hours after the opening of a predicted dismal duck hunting season Manitobans reported its first casualty, Frank Quirt, 35, of Winnipeg, had part of his left hand blown off by an accidental shotgun blast.

Across the west the duck population suffered this year from low water levels. A poor breeding season left ducks in short supply for the hunting season.

Saskatchewan was hardest hit. Ducks Unlimited reported the duck population down 15 to 25 percent. Best area of the west: northern Alberta where the duck rating is excellent.—The Red River Valley Echo.

UNPATRIOTIC CANADIANS

Canadian lack of patriotism is worrying the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. Their efforts to stimulate patriotic fervor among immigrants is hampered, they say, by the apparent lack of it among native Canadians.

The I.O.D.E. thinks the flying foreign flags as an attraction to tourists is unpatriotic. No doubt they were horrified too by the recent publicity that Canadians were "indifferent to the Queen."

I think patriotism is not something we generally display most when we are at home. Like members of any family we squabble and complain amongst ourselves. However, let any outsider suggest our home is not perfect and we rise up in patriotic wrath.

Canadians travelling south of the U.S. border regularly splutter with rage at ill-informed remarks about this country. American tourists who dared to assume that the presence of the Stars and Stripes here meant we wanted to join the States would get an awful shock.

Overseas too we are very touchy about being labelled as American and hastily correct European ideas that being a Canadian is "practically the same thing."

Canadians are equally resentful of any suggestion that this country is a British annex. We didn't get very excited about the Royal Visit until someone said we didn't care about the Queen of Canada. Then look what happened!

I have an idea on how the I.O.D.E. could impress immigrants with Canadian patriotism. They should instruct all newcomers to find fault, criticize and complain about Canada. Any aspect, of our way of living will do.

Wow! Would our immigrants find out quickly about Canadian patriotism.

—Or, that old couple growing weaker, whose children live so far away that no one looks after them?

—Or, that melancholy boy, who has lived many years in an Orphanage, although the psychiatrist says that he desperately needs the loving care of a Foster Home?

—Or, that single girl, who is terrified to realize that she was pregnant and ran away from home and brooded for months over abortion and suicide?

These are some of the difficult situations in which kindly Christian people can help.

Just how they can help will be described by three professional Social Workers. Mr. Holmes, the District Welfare Worker from Wetaskiwin, will tell how a kindly parishioner can be a "home-maker" and look after that family whose mother must be away for long hospital treatment. He will also tell how certain families can be "Foster homes" for children like that melancholy boy who so badly needs the support of stable and loving parents.

Miss Dorothy Krause of Ponoka will tell how Church people may help the old folks around them. Miss Krause is the Clinical Psychologist at the Hospital there.

Dr. Phillips, also of Ponoka, will show how Church people may help people who have been in various difficulties return to normal life in society. Beside being the head of the Department of Rehabilitation at the Ponoka Hospital, Dr. Phillips is the Deputy Superintendent.

Pastors and six Welfare Workers spent two days discussing "What shall be the role of Lutherans in Canadian Social Welfare?" Similar studies were made in five other provinces.
